SILVER'S FIRM HOLD ON OHIO.

Gold Democrats Will Have No Voice in the State Convention.

Senator Will Not Even Be Made a Delegate-at-Large to Chicago.

Altgeld Will Play the Part of a Mark Hanna at the Illinois Democratic Convention.

GO'LD MEN WORK HARD IN INDIANA.

Delegates to the State Democratic Convention Taken in Charge as They Arrived. Wisconsin Seemingly in Gold Hands.

Columbus, Ohio, June 22.—Ohio Democrats will speak for silver, and their State Convention, which will meet to-morrow, will be a fervid ratification meeting. For months the silver leaders have been working night and day in the agricultural districts. This convention is to be made up largely of farmers, and the silver men will easily control it.

But the hands of gold men will put up a game fight against overpowering numbers. The one hope of the gold Democrats is to put on record the eminent Democratic leaders who have been caught up in the silver whirlwind, just now sweeping the State. The gold men predict that this is a spasmodic craze which will soon die out, and they want the silver bugs listed for future demolition, when gold shall triumph.

The remarkable feature in connection with the sudden silver boom is that in August last Brice and the gold bugs carried the State Convention almost to 1, Holden, Thurman and Company, representing silver, were whipped, and Brice was chairman of the convention that applied the lash.

In less than a year Thurman and Holden are on top and Brice will not even be here. He cannot be elected delegate-at-large, and so remains in New York. The delegates at-large to Chicago will be: John W. Bookwalter, L. E. Holden, John E. McLean and Allen W. Thurman.

RETURN OF BOOKWALTER. The return of Bookwalter to Ohio politics is a romance. Fifteen years ago he was the nominee for Governor. After his defeat he was disgusted with politics and left the State. He became a wandering philosopher, and being a millionaire, traveled the world over in quest of amusement and knowledge. Two years ago he declared that he was going to Asia never to return. The silver agitation came on and he remained in New York. Almost forgotten in Ohio, he suddenly rushed in on the political stage and will be the leading man in the spectacular silver drama of to-morrow.

Not only will he be a delegate-at-large, but he will be Ohio's candidate for President. This convention will not specifically endorse him, that would be a slap at Campbell, Neill and others who have been active, while Bookwalter was in foreign capitals; but at Chicago his name will be presented and his bureau is already organized. Bookwalter is both manufacturer and farmer, conditions which give him peculiar strength. His farms are in Poplarville, Nebraska, and his factories are in Ohio.

The platform will endorse silver, but say nothing about the tariff. The Wilson law will not be mentioned. The delegates will be instructed to leave out all mention of tariff in the Chicago platform. The idea is to make the issue silver and silver alone.

BRICE'S POWER GONE. President Cleveland will not be abused, but will be ignored. His views will be condemned, but he will not be mentioned by name. It will be no novelty to see a Democratic platform in Ohio that does not refer to "the wise and patriotic administration of President Cleveland." Senator Brice will be lucky if he is not unmercifully condemned in words. Wall street will come in for the fiercest denunciation.

This convention signals the return to power of the "Kild Democracy," organized in 1881 by John McLean. This faction defeated Pendleton and drove the old leaders into exile. The rejuvenation of the McLean faction means that McLean will endeavor again to succeed in the Senate. To-morrow the party organization will come from the control of Brice to that of McLean, and from now on there will be bitter factional fights between the Democratic millionaires of Ohio.

ALTGELD TO BE A HANNA.

He Will Run the Illinois Convention Just as He Pleases—Gold in a Hopeless Minority.

Peoria, Ill., June 22.—Governor Altgeld will be the Mark Hanna of Illinois at the meeting of the Democratic State Convention. His forces, all of whom are in favor of free silver, are overwhelmingly in control.

Altgeld will designate the delegates to Chicago, draft the platform, indicate his preferences for the nominations on the State ticket and, whatever he says and does will be accepted without murmuring. Everything is so thoroughly out and dried that Secretary of State Hendrickson said this morning that the entire business would be gone through with within two hours, instead of two days as originally contemplated.

The gold standard minority will content itself with a protest against the silver plank, but, according to the present programme, there will be no bolt. Leading gold Democrats, of whom Postmaster Hesling, of Chicago, is the most conspicuous, are flocking in this morning from all over the State to look over the field, but they are without weight or influence, save in exhorting the minority to stand firm and not permit the Altgeld programme to go through by default.

MARK TWAIN'S LATEST.

How He Congratulated Johannesburg Reformers Because They Were in Jail.

By Julian Ralph.

London, June 22.—Before the reform prisoners were liberated from the Pretoria jail Mark Twain visited them and fed them with humor by the bucketful. While they crowded around him eager for a chance to laugh Mark said he was delighted to find only one newspaper man in limbo. Being a journalist himself he knew the talent of the craft for keeping out of jail.

He said he was not a bit surprised to find the legal fraternity largely and influentially represented in the jail. He said it had been the dream of his life to get into jail, but misfortune dogged his footsteps. Whenever he had committed anything it always happened that no witnesses were around, and he never had sufficient reputation for veracity to get himself convicted without corroborative evidence.

There was no place on earth where a man could get such uninterrupted quiet as in jail. He proposed to make a contract with the prisoners to stay in and let them all go, and thus could kill two birds with one stone—act as hostage for them and write his book in peace. "Pilgrim's Progress" never would have been written if Bunyan had not been in jail and Cervantes was privileged to suffer in durance vile and thus was enabled to write "Don Quixote." These two roamed about on the wings of imagination describing perils and enjoying the intoxicating delights of war without personal danger. They simply superintended.

Twain told the prisoners that the insidious charms of jail would increase the longer they remained in jail. He felt this so strongly that he meant to ask "Oom Paul" to extend their sentences.

SALVATION ARMY PANIC.

One Woman's Skull Fractured, and Great Excitement on the First Excursion Up the Hudson.

The first pleasure excursion of the Salvation Army, which it is intended to make annual, was held yesterday and was attended by a panic of serious moment. The old Long Branch steamer Tolchester was engaged to carry the passengers to Iona Island. Salvationists from all parts of the country came to enjoy the sail up the Hudson, and, with the corps of this city, Brooklyn and New Jersey, swelled the crowd to nearly 1,500. Four brass bands and a string band furnished the music.

The steamer was packed when it left the Twentieth street dock. Opposite the Palisades a religious meeting was called by Commander Booth-Tucker. There was a rush to that part of the boat, and as she leaned over, one of the iron beams which support the deck gave way and fell crashing among the crowd below. The shouts and screams drowned the exhortation, and there was almost a panic on the lower deck. Mr. and Mrs. Booth-Tucker, who were seated near the scene and did what they could to allay the excitement.

The crowd on the upper deck had started the supports, and one of the iron girders fell upon one of the female Salvationists, fracturing her skull. Several of the women fainted, and many supposed that the entire upper deck was about to cave in.

Had it not been for the coolness of the deck hands there might have been loss of life and serious injury, as the boat was overcrowded, and the women especially seemed to have lost their senses.

It was a miraculous intervention of Providence, that the women were not injured by the falling beam instead of one person. Many children were in close proximity to the girder when it fell.

It was some time before the excitement was allayed. The Tolchester made her trip to Iona Island, where a religious meeting was held, and the steamer returned without any more mishaps at 8:30 p. m. The injured woman was conveyed to her home. Her name was not disclosed.

HAS BALFOUR RESIGNED?

Rumor in London Is That the First Lord of the Treasury Has Left the Cabinet.

London, June 22.—Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury, and the Government leader in the House of Commons, is said to have resigned from the Cabinet, but the rumor cannot be confirmed. It gained strength from the fact that a Cabinet Council was hastily summoned and sat in the Foreign Office for over an hour this morning.

When the House of Commons resumed its sittings, in consequence of the whole on the Education bill to-day Mr. Balfour moved that the chairman leave the chair, which motion is equivalent to dropping the bill for the present session. Mr. Balfour said he did not feel at all moved by criticisms asserting that the course decided upon was discreditable to the Government.

Mr. William Harcourt, the leader of the opposition, justified the right of the Liberals to defeat a revolutionary attack upon elementary education.

WANT HETTY GREEN'S SON,

Texas Republicans and Gold Democrats Unite in Booming Him for the Governorship.

Dallas, Tex., June 22.—It is as good as settled that Edward H. R. Green, the son of America's wealthiest woman, Hetty Green, of New York, will make the race for the Governorship of Texas. Mr. Green is president of the Texas Midland Railroad. He has millions of money invested in this State and has projected nearly 1,000 miles of new road to be built within the next twelve months.

He went to St. Louis as a Texas delegate for Tom Reed from the Sixth Congressional District, and was turned down by a negro barber from Vandalia, who voted for McKinley. This has hurt his pride and the boom which was started for him by the Governor of Texas last March has been revived.

There was a conference of more than twenty leading Republicans and gold Democrats held in this city to-day, at which it was agreed to support Green for Governor on a gold standard and "business man's" platform.

RUSSELL WILL NOT BE A CANDIDATE.

He Announces That His Name Is Not to Be Presented at Chicago.

Wants to Go There Untrammelled to Help Whitney in His Fight for Gold.

Asked by the Latter to Accompany Him to the National Convention, and Will Accede.

OPPOSED TO WHITE METAL MEN.

His Decision Based on the Belief That the Financial Issue is the All Important One of the Present Campaign.

Boston, June 22.—Ex-Governor William E. Russell announced to-day that he will not permit the presentation of his name at the Chicago Convention.

"I shall take a hand in the struggle for gold against free silver," he said, "and I cannot go to that city under the least suspicion that I am there for any personal reasons, nor can I take part in this fight embarrassed by any personal interest in the result. I shall, therefore, decline to have my name presented to the convention as a candidate.

"It is at the earnest request of Mr. Whitney that I will accompany him to the National Convention to give whatever help I can in the struggle in the Democratic party against free silver. Believing the issue to be of the greatest importance not only to the country, but to the present and future of the Democratic party, I cannot remain inactive if it is thought I can be of any service at Chicago.

"I believe in making the stoutest possible fight for a gold standard, and shall not give up the fight until the votes are counted. I consider it both a duty and a privilege to take part in this struggle, and I shall do it with my whole heart, unembarrassed by any personal considerations and in the earnest hope and belief that the Democratic convention will be sound both in its platform and its candidates."

COLLAPSED ON WORKMEN.

Occupants of a Building Went Down in the Wreck, and Several Lost Their Lives.

San Francisco, June 22.—The three-story building at the corner of Mint avenue and Fifth street collapsed at 3:35 o'clock this afternoon, and so far the bodies of a man and woman who were killed, and nine others who were more or less seriously injured, have been taken from the ruins, but it is known that several more are buried in the basement.

The building was occupied on the first floor by the McElmott family. The upper story was devoted to lodging purposes. The proprietor decided a few days ago to convert the basement, and workmen have been engaged in the task. The building was raised with jacks and handcrews to enable the workmen to operate. The laborers under the building heard the crash of breaking timbers and suddenly the studding supporting the building gave way, with a loud report, precipitating the structure into the excavation, a distance of about eight feet.

A large crowd collected and an alarm of fire was turned in. The firemen and police worked bravely to rescue the imprisoned workmen and one of the bodies was recovered. The bodies of the man and woman were found in the wreckage. The bodies of the man and woman were found in the wreckage. The bodies of the man and woman were found in the wreckage.

INNOCENT MAN FAINTED

McDermott Confessed He Was the Real Criminal, and Assisted in Liberating Ellis.

Frank J. Ellis stood trembling before the bar in Part I, General Sessions, yesterday morning. He had pleaded not guilty to an indictment for grand larceny. New York steeled himself. McDermott, who, jointly indicted with Ellis, had pleaded guilty. Judge Cowling considered the cases separately. Ellis listened eagerly to what Lawyer Johnson said in his behalf. When Judge Cowling said "Discharged," he fell fainting into a chair. McDermott was sentenced to the penitentiary.

Antonio Magliana was robbed of a watch on a Madison avenue street car last April. McDermott confessed that he had robbed Magliana, and said that Ellis had had nothing to do with it.

BASEBALL FIELD CAVES IN.

Short Stop Narrowly Misses Going Into an Apparently Bottomless Pit.

Hazleton, Pa., June 21.—During the progress of a game of baseball on the old Athletic Grounds at Laurel Hill to-day a cave-in took place beneath the spot usually occupied by the short stop. The teams playing were Weatherly and Laurel Hill. A large crowd was in attendance. The field was known to be underlain by a soft shale. The portion of the diamond covered by the short stop was once marked by a well 40 or 50 feet deep. It was filled with dirt long ago, and when young Blackwell took his position in the third inning he trod on this earth plug. The batsman sent a ball near second. Blackwell changed his base, and a moment later there was a loud roar and a look of astonishment overspread the faces of the five hundred spectators as they gazed on a dark hole in the ground. Shortstop Blackwell, realizing what a narrow escape he had had, nearly fainted. The spectators fearing a further cave-in fled quickly from the field, not stopping till they reached a spot high on the mountain side. The game came to a stop.

Later, the hole was examined, but it is apparently bottomless. It is supposed that the well was put down immediately after an old breast, and this shell gave way, taking down the earth that had been poured into the cavity.

HARRISON AND HIS BRIDE IN PERIL.

Narrowly Escape Being Crushed Between a Trolley Car and Pole.

Spirited Horses and a Careless Driver Almost Cause a Fatal Accident.

Ex-President Ready to Take the Reins, While His Wife Is Cool and Unconcerned.

HOW THEY RAN THE GAUNTLET.

Spectators Stood with Blanched Faces When They Realized the Peril of the Occupants of the Harrison Carriage.

Indianapolis, June 22.—Ex-President and Mrs. Harrison were in extreme danger of being crushed between an electric car and a trolley pole, on East Washington street, this afternoon, and though the danger was over in a moment, those who saw them run the perilous gauntlet gazed upon the scene with blanched faces and heaved a sigh of relief when the pair were in safety.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison were in their carriage, drawn by two spirited horses and driven by their colored coachman. They tried to cross the street, evidently not observing an electric car that stood on the west track, a few feet distant from an electric pole.

Realized Their Peril.

As the driver turned on to the track the horses became excited, and at the same moment the gong of another car sounded a few yards distant, going east on the opposite track. The Harrison's driver evidently realized his perilous position, and suddenly turned the horses so that they would pass between the pole and the car, though the space was so narrow that it seemed impossible to make the passage without striking one or the other. The horses plunged forward, and by a lucky chance ran the narrow way without striking either the pole or the car.

Mr. Harrison seemingly recognized the danger at the same moment that it became apparent to the driver, as he grasped the back of the seat in front of him and rose partly from a sitting posture. He did not evince any desire to jump from the vehicle, but was apparently prepared to take the lines if the emergency required it, and while the horses were making the run he looked forward as if ready at any moment to render assistance in their management.

Mrs. Harrison Unconcerned.

The street was crowded at the time, and attention was at once directed to the carriage by the action of the horses, and when the occupants were recognized there was a cry of fear from persons on the sidewalk. As far as could be seen, Mrs. Harrison either did not realize the danger she was in or was not in the least disturbed by it. She kept her seat without evincing the least excitement, and as the horse bounded over the track and drew up in front of the New York street, she recognized an acquaintance on the street and bowed to her. The incident was commented upon by all who witnessed it, and much gratification was expressed at the fortunate escape of the ex-President and his wife.

ELECTROCUTED AT WORK.

Hilliard Standing Near a Switchboard Received 2,200 Volts.

Rochester, N. Y., June 22.—Coroner Graham and several physicians made an autopsy at the morgue to-day on the body of Charles Hilliard, an employee of the Citizens' Light and Power Company, for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the cause of his death was an electric shock. At 6 o'clock yesterday morning, when he was at or near the switchboard in the company's plant, Hilliard was seen to fall by some of his fellow workmen, and they rushed to his assistance.

After he had been worked over for two hours he died without recovering consciousness. The wires near which Hilliard was working were carrying at the time 2,200 volts of alternating current. Only 2,100 volts is the maximum employed in electrocuting criminals. The autopsy showed that death was undoubtedly caused by a shock of electricity, and there was no doubt in the minds of the physicians that the current of 2,200 voltage had passed through Hilliard's body.

ROBBED BY A CENTRAL PORTER

Quick Work of a Detective Recovered the Passenger's Money.

Rochester, June 22.—William T. Wilson, colored porter on a New York Central Railroad train, was arraigned in the police court this morning, charged with having robbed Franklin Farrell, of New Haven, Conn., of $170.

Mr. Farrell, who is on his way to Arizona, boarded a Central train in New York yesterday morning. A short distance west of Albany Mr. Farrell missed his pocketbook. He informed the conductor of his loss, and that official wired Syracuse and Rochester. At Syracuse Detective Sampson boarded the train.

Suspicion rested on Wilson, but the detective was almost giving up the search when he noticed that the waistband of Wilson's trousers was rather stiff. The officer ripped it open and there found the missing bills. Wilson at first told the detective that he did not know how the money got there, but later said that he picked it up in the car. Wilson will be held for the Grand Jury.

HILL'S HOUSE, WHERE THE CONFERENCE WAS HELD

MAJOR JAMES W. HINKLEY.

WILLIAM C. WHITNEY

CONFERENCE OF DEMOCRATIC LEADERS AT WOLFERT'S ROOST.

William C. Whitney, Chairman Hinkley, of the Democratic State Committee, and Senator Hill met at the latter's Albany residence yesterday. There they mapped out the plan of action to be carried out by the gold standard men at the Chicago Convention.

JUSTICE FIELD AND X RAYS.

An Affection of His Knee Joint for the First Time Clearly Diagnosed.

Medical Men Differed Hitherto as to the Nature of His Lameness.

INFLAMMATION CAUSED BY A BLOW.

The Radiograph Taken in San Francisco Conclusively Showed the Nature of the Aged Jurist's Trouble.

San Francisco, Cal., June 22.—Stephen J. Field, Justice of Supreme Court of the United States, has had an experience of three-quarters of an hour under the Roentgen ray.

Justice Field is troubled with an affection of the knee joint, the nature of which doctors could not exactly define. It was a particularly trying ordeal through which the aged jurist had to pass. He is feeble, but his bright eye and strong mouth serve to show his energy and vitality. A sheathed sensitive plate was tied outside his trousers on one side of the knee. On the other side stood the bulb of the Crooke's tubes, not touching, but clamped within three inches of the leg.

An inspection of the negative, after an exposure of three-quarters of an hour, showed that the experiment had been successful in getting a good picture of the condition of the bones of the joint. A comparison of the negative with that of a normal knee joint showed an enlargement of the bones of Justice Field's knee joint. The tibia and the femur have almost grown together. The hinge, so to speak, is partially solidified.

The result is a very gratifying demonstration of the value of the X rays as a means of disclosing the nature, location and extent of an interior lesion. Dr. Philip Jones, in whose laboratory the experiment was conducted, explained the nature of the injury as follows:

"The examination of Judge Field's trouble of the knee joint by means of the X rays was particularly interesting on account of the manner in which he has suffered, and the divers opinions that have been expressed by many medical men."

"The radiograph taken by me shows that the trouble has been indirect. A blow received some years ago was the provocation of a chronic inflammation of the synovial membrane of the joint, with a deposit of a bony nature, which now almost fills the space between the bones, which are themselves perfectly healthy."

TAMMANY TRAIN LEAVES AT 9:30 A. M.

Tammany braves will leave for Saratoga on a special train from the Grand Central Depot at 9:30 o'clock this morning. About 400 members of the organization are expected to go. The train will consist of ten coaches, in addition to two or three baggage cars, which will carry refreshments.

FIXING PLANS AT HILL'S HOME.

Ex-Secretary Whitney and the Senator Confer at Wolfert's Roost.

Saratoga's Plank Will Strongly Favor Gold and Decry Free Coinage Folly.

If Silver Wins at Chicago New York Democrats Will Ignore the White Metal Plank.

WHITNEY TO BE A FREE LANCE.

He Will Not Go to the National Convention as a Delegate-at-Large from This State in Spite of Senator Hill's Wishes.

Albany, June 22.—The programme to be followed by the gold standard men at Chicago, which was completed to-day by ex-Secretary Whitney at Wolfert's Roost, the residence of Senator Hill, and with the concurrence of the latter, may be construed to serve as a notice that Cleveland's followers are no longer conducting the contest against the silver Democrats.

Ex-Secretary Whitney arrived here at 7:30 o'clock to-night, accompanied by Chairman Hinkley, of the Democratic State Committee, who joined him at Poughkeepsie. They were met at the station by Senator Hill, and the greeting between the ex-Secretary and the Senator was exceedingly cordial. The party entered Senator Hill's carriage and were driven to Wolfert's Roost. Dinner was served shortly after the arrival of the party, and lasted until nearly 10 o'clock.

During the meal both Senator Hill and Chairman Hinkley urged Mr. Whitney to change his mind and become a delegate-at-large to the Chicago Convention. Mr. Whitney said that he believed that as an outsider he could be more useful at Chicago than if he had a seat in the convention and so he would adhere to his original plan and go to Chicago as he did four years ago.

Discussed the Money Plank.

After dinner the party retired to the library and discussed the sort of financial plank that should be adopted at the Saratoga Convention. While it is admitted that a general understanding was reached to-night, Mr. Whitney told a personal political friend that nothing had been committed to writing. It is safe to say, however, that the plank will strongly favor the gold standard. There will also be a declaration regarding the folly of free coinage. Mr. Whitney's statement will be the basis of what will be the expression of the New York Democracy on the currency question. The plank is also intended to serve as an inspiration for all other Eastern Democrats.

Mr. Whitney, while on his way here, met ex-Mayor Thomas F. Gilroy, Corporation Counsel Scott, ex-Sheriff James Shevlin, of Brooklyn, and United States Marshal John McCarthy. To these the ex-Secretary was very candid as to what he would insist upon in the financial plank of the Saratoga platform. He said it must be of the most uncompromising character. After declaring for gold, should take the form of resolutions setting forth how the New York Democrats regard the possibility of a declaration favoring the free coinage of silver by the Chicago Convention. This will supply a rallying cry for the gold standard Democrats of other States.

These resolutions are also intended to prepare the future course of action of the New York Democrats in case a free coinage plank is adopted by the National Convention at Chicago. If defeated in Chicago they will return home confident their adherence to the Saratoga platform and conduct their campaign, those lines, entirely ignoring the plank of the National Convention.

Hill and Whitney in Harmony.

It was suggested during the session on the train that Senator Hill, hope of effecting a compromise with

VERMONT HEALER HERE.

Blacksmith Bradley C. Newell Comes to the City on a Healing Mission.

Says He Is Besieged by the Blind, Lame and Halt at the Imperial Hotel.

Called the New England Schlatter.

Denies the Rumor That He Is Going to England on the Invitation of the Prince of Wales to Heal Royalty.

Bradley C. Newell, the leading blacksmith of Jacksonville, Vt., put in a busy day at the Imperial Hotel yesterday. Mr. Newell looks like a blacksmith and has the manners of a gentleman. He claims to be able to do nobody any good, and is willing to try to help anybody. Newell, who is known as the New England Schlatter, is six feet high and built from the ground up. Looking him from the rear he suggests a prize-fighter. In the face he looks like a Western Congressman, a graduate of the plow or the mechanic's bench, full of opinions, but quite unacquainted to the din of the city.

This is Newell's second visit to New York since he became famous as a healer. The first was made some months ago. He transacted his business and left before it was known who he was. When asked to what he ascribed his power, he said: "I don't know. I have treated thousands. Some I have helped, many I have not. I did not intend to treat any one here, but I have had several callers who desired my services. The spiritualists claim I am a medium and all that. The faith cure people declare that I belong to them, and that it is due to faith. The members of all the churches have asked me if I did not belong to their faith, I am a blacksmith."

"I have consented to treat the wife of a newspaper man, and am going to the hospital where she is confined for that purpose. I hope I can help her. The story that I am going to Europe to treat the Princess of Wales is not so. I am going to Europe with the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston. The Prince of Wales has invited us to witness the Henry Regatta. That is all the connection I have with the royal family."

The artillery company will sail on the Servia next Monday, and will remain a week or ten days.

THIEVES WORRY J. P. MORGAN.

His Half-Rater and Charles Appleton's Stripped of Their Sails.

J. Pierpont Morgan and Charles Appleton, of Premium Point, yesterday reported to the police that on Sunday night their half-raters, which were at anchor off their residences, had been stripped of sails and other movable articles. Both the boats are of Horrechoff build. Mr. Morgan's boat is the Baby Etta, and Mr. Appleton's is the Jola.
